

STONEWALL HOME LEARNING PACK – LGBT History Month 2021

This LGBT History Month, we're focussing on the lives and work of some courageous LGBT women. LGBT History Month was founded by Schools Out, who have been campaigning for LGBT inclusive education for 47 years. Due to Covid-19, we've created home learning packs as well as lesson packs to ensure that your students can benefit from the lesson content wherever they're learning. You'll find the lesson pack that mirrors this home learning pack on our website. Each home learning pack has suggested activities and resources for students to complete at home. This is the 11-16 version of the pack, you'll find the primary age and post-16 packs on our website. We have also developed packs on this theme for pupils with SEND/ASN/ALN – these can be found on our website.

Who are Stonewall?

This resource is produced by Stonewall, a UK-based charity that stands for the freedom, equity and potential of all lesbian, gay, bi, trans, queer, questioning and ace (LGBTQ+) people. At Stonewall, we imagine a world where LGBTQ+ people everywhere can live our lives to the full. Founded in London in 1989, we now work in each nation of the UK and have established partnerships across the globe. Over the last three decades, we have created transformative change in the lives of LGBTQ+ people in the UK, helping win equal rights around marriage, having children and inclusive education.

Our campaigns drive positive change for our communities, and our sustained change and empowerment programmes ensure that LGBTQ+ people can thrive throughout our lives. We make sure that the world hears and learns from our communities, and our work is grounded in evidence and expertise.

Stonewall is proud to provide information, support and guidance on LGBTQ+ inclusion; working towards a world where we're all free to be. This does not constitute legal advice, and is not intended to be a substitute for legal counsel on any subject matter. To find out more about our work, visit us at www.stonewall.org.uk.

Key Stage 3 or S1 to S3 activities

Inspiration and courage

- What does the word 'inspirational' mean to you? Talk about the idea of inspirational people with a friend or family member. Write a short paragraph to explain what 'inspirational' means.
- Write about someone or something that inspires you, explaining why they are inspirational.
- Name as many inspirational women as you can. What things have they got in common? What things make them different from each other?
- What does the word 'courage' mean to you? Write a short paragraph to explain what 'courage' is.
- Think about a time when you were courageous. Make a comic strip or write a diary entry to explain what happened and what you did.
- Are there things that people might not think of as courageous or brave now that might have been courageous at the time? What might those things be and what might have changed? Talk about your ideas with a friend or family member.

Courageous LGBT women

Choose one of the following courageous LGBT women to research:

- Catherine Duleep Singh
- Gail Lewis
- Jan Morris
- Vita Sackville-West

Using the findings from your research, you could:

- Create a social media profile (use the worksheet in the activity pack, don't make her an online profile)
- Make a page for an information book
- Create a poster
- Create a PowerPoint presentation
- Write a script for a podcast
- Tell a friend or family member about the courageous woman

However you choose to present your work, it should answer these questions:

- Who was/is she?
- What did she do that was courageous?
- What were some of the main events in her life?
- Are there any aspects of her life that would have been different if those events had happened in 2021 instead of when they did?

Key Stage 4 or S5 to S6 activities

Reflect and consider

- 2 minute challenge: name as many women as you can that have been involved in improving people's attitudes to equality.

After you complete the challenge, reflect on the people you have named. Was there anything they had in common with each other? How did they differ from each other? Did the women belong to particular movements? How many women of colour did they name? How many disabled women did they name? How many of the women were LGBT? If some women weren't represented, why might that be?

Research and respond

- Choose one of the women from the list below, research her and then answer the question 'What impact did this woman have on society and how did she bring about social change?'
  - Catherine Duleep Singh
  - Gail Lewis
  - Jan Morris
  - Vita Sackville-West

You can choose how to present your answer, here are some ideas:

- A poster
- A PowerPoint presentation
- A page for a reference book
- A one minute video
- A newspaper article

Catherine Duleep Singh

Catherine Hilda Duleep Singh was born on 27th October 1871. She had 2 sisters, 3 brothers and 2 half-sisters. Her father was Maharaja Duleep Singh, former ruler of Punjab, India.

The family lived in Elvedon Hall, which was very extravagantly decorated. When Catherine's father went to India for an extended visit, Catherine and her sisters moved to Hampton Court Palace. They had been invited to live there by Queen Victoria, who was their godmother.

Catherine was a strong supporter of women's right to vote. This was known as the suffragist movement. She was a member of the Fawcett Women's Suffrage Group, as well as the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies (NUWSS).

After a trip to India, Catherine went to live in Germany. She lived in there with her partner, Lina Schäfer. As the Nazi Party gained power, life was increasingly difficult for people in Germany. LGBT people and people of colour faced a huge deal of discrimination, so life will have been hard for Catherine. Despite this, Catherine and Lina lived in Germany until Lina's death in 1937.

Jewish people were also targeted by the Nazi Party. Catherine and Lina helped several Jewish families to escape Germany. This is something Catherine continued to do after Lina's death.

When she died in 1942, Catherine had been living in Buckinghamshire. In 1997, Catherine and Lina's Swiss bank account and deposit box were discovered. There was a rumour that the deposit box may have contained rare and valuable jewels, however it actually contained a relatively small amount of money.

Catherine was a strong supporter of the suffragist movement, which aimed to secure women's right to vote. She was a member of the Fawcett Women's Suffrage Group, as well as the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies (NUWSS) and was involved in numerous events.

After touring India, Catherine moved to Germany in 1904. She lived in Germany and Switzerland with her partner, Lina Schäfer. Lesbian relationships were frowned upon at the time, so life would have been more challenging for Catherine than for her sisters.

Life in Germany during the rise of the Nazi Party became increasingly difficult for Catherine. This was because LGBT people and people of colour faced a huge deal of discrimination. Despite this, Catherine and Lina lived in Germany until Lina's death in 1937. Jewish people were also targeted by the Nazi Party. Catherine and Lina helped numerous Jewish families to escape Germany. This is something Catherine continued to do after Lina's death. When she returned to England, she offered several German-Jewish refugees somewhere to live.

When she died in 1942, Catherine had been living in Buckinghamshire. She was cremated, and quarter of her ashes were buried next to Lina's coffin in Germany. The rest were taken to India. In 1997, Catherine and Lina's Swiss bank account and deposit box were discovered. There was speculation that the deposit box may have contained rare and valuable jewels, however it actually contained a relatively small amount of money.

Catherine Hilda Duleep Singh was born on 27th October 1871. She had 2 sisters, 3 brothers and 2 half-sisters. Her father was Maharaja Duleep Singh, former ruler of Punjab, India. However, he had moved to England after he was deposed by the East India Company. Once in England, he married Catherine's mother Bamba. The family lived in Elvedon Hall, which was very extravagantly decorated. However, when Catherine's father went to India to try and re-establish himself, Catherine and her sisters moved to Hampton Court Palace. This move was on the invitation of their godmother, Queen Victoria. Catherine made her debut and was 'presented in court' in 1895.

Along with her sister Sophia, Catherine was a strong supporter of the suffragist movement which aimed to secure women's right to vote. She was a member of the Fawcett Women's Suffrage Group as well as the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies (NUWSS) and was involved in numerous events and dinners in support of the movement.

Catherine took the opportunity to tour India in 1903 before she moved to Germany in 1904. She lived in Germany and Switzerland with her partner, Lina Schäfer. Lesbian relationships were frowned upon at the time, however historical archives make no mention of the Duleep Singh family ever being unsupportive of Catherine.

Life in Germany during the rise of the Nazi Party became increasingly difficult for Catherine as a lesbian woman of Indian heritage. Despite this, Catherine and Lina lived in Germany until Lina's death in 1937. They were able to help numerous Jewish families to escape Nazi run Germany in order to seek asylum in the UK. In 1997 a Swiss bank account and deposit box were discovered, and it emerged that they had belonged to Catherine and Lina. There was widespread speculation that the deposit box may have contained rare and valuable jewels, however it actually contained a relatively modest amount of money.

Gail Lewis

Gail Lewis was born in London in 1951 and is known for her work in the Black Women's movement. As a teenager, Gail became involved in organisations such as the Black Liberation Front. She went to some feminist events but found that they were very focussed on white women's experiences.

At first Gail was nervous about going to Black Women's groups because she was worried about people being homophobic. However, she decided that the aims of the Brixton Black Women's group were important enough for her to give it a try. She left it a while before she came out to the group, and at first she was the only openly lesbian woman.

Brixton Black Women's group was formed in the 1970s. They aimed to challenge racism and give women a space for political discussion. Originally it was a study group, but it soon became a community base and a campaigning organisation. The group aimed to represent Black women in a way that other organisations didn't. At first the meetings were held in the women's homes, but in 1970 they opened the Brixton Black Women's Centre. The group dissolved once the original members of the group had moved on.

Gail was also involved in forming the Organisation of Women of African and Asian Descent (OWAAD) in 1987. They campaigned around a range of issues impacting Black and Asian women. These issues included immigration, domestic violence, school exclusions, health and policing.

Gail is still an active contributor to feminist conversations. She is a published writer, an academic and a trained psychoanalyst. She currently works as an academic studying gender.

As a teenager, Gail became involved in organisations such as the Black Liberation Front and went to some feminist events. However, she found it hard to be involved in feminism because so much of feminist discussion centred on white middle-class women.

Gail was initially apprehensive about going to Black Women's groups, for fear of homophobic discrimination. However, she decided that the aims of the Brixton Black Women's group were important enough that she ought to pluck up the courage and try. It was some time before she came out to the group, and for a while she was the only openly lesbian woman.

Initially a study group, it soon became a community base and a campaigning organisation that aimed to represent Black women in a way that other feminist organisations didn't. The women initially had meetings in each other's homes, but in 1970 they opened the Brixton Black Women's Centre. Their work gradually developed into an organisation that foregrounded women's relations as the object of political change. As the original members of the group moved on or got tired and as both Black political activity and women's political activity changed, the group eventually dissolved.

Gail was also involved in forming the Organisation of Women of African and Asian Descent (OWAAD) in 1987. They campaigned around a range of issues impacting Black and Asian women, including immigration, domestic violence, school exclusions, health, policing, and reproductive rights.

Jan Morris

Jan Morris was born in Somerset in 1926. She was trans and didn't tell anyone she was a woman until the 1960s. For this reason, her parents raised her as if she was a boy. Jan's first job was at 16, as a reporter for Bristol's 'Western Daily Press'. When she went to fight in World War 2, Jan's writing had to wait.

When she was 22, Jan worked for the 'Arab News Agency' in Cairo. It was there that Jan met her wife Elizabeth. This was before Jan's transition, so their marriage was seen as a marriage between a man and a woman at first.

In 1964, Jan came out as trans and began her transition. There were very few openly trans people at the time, so this will have made life especially challenging. Jan wrote about her experience of being trans in her book 'Conundrum'.

Jan was a travel writer, and one of her most famous books was a 'biography' of Venice. Her book remains one of the most read books about Venice. Jan's three volume of history of Britain, 'Pax Britannica', is another particularly well-known piece of writing.

In 1953, Jan was the journalist that reported on Edmund Hillary's expedition up Mount Everest in 1953. In 1956 she was also the first person to prove that France and Israel had collaborated to invade Egyptian territory.

Jan was a writer for her entire life, spending much of her time writing from her home in Wales. She published her book 'Thinking Again' just a year before she died on 19th November 2020.

Jan Morris was born in Somerset in 1926. She was trans and didn't tell anyone she was a woman until the 1960s. For this reason, her parents raised her as if she was a boy. Jan's first job was at 16, as a reporter for Bristol's 'Western Daily Press'.

However, Jan's career as a journalist had to be put on hold when she went to fight in World War 2.

When she was 22, Jan had a job working for the 'Arab News Agency' in Cairo. It was there that Jan met her wife Elizabeth. As this was before Jan's transition, their marriage was seen as a heterosexual marriage at first. In 1964, Jan came out as trans and began her transition. There were very few openly trans people at the time, so this will have made life especially challenging. Jan wrote about her experience of being trans in her book 'Conundrum', explaining that "I was three or perhaps four years old when I realized that I had been born into the wrong body, and should really be a girl."

A travel writer, one of Jan's most famous books was a 'biography' of Venice. Her book remains one of the most read books about Venice. Jan's three volume of history of Britain, 'Pax Britannica', is another particularly well-known piece of writing.

It was Jan that reported on Edmund Hillary's expedition up Mount Everest in 1953. In 1956 she was also the first person to prove that France and Israel had collaborated to invade Egyptian territory during the Suez crisis.

Jan was a writer for her entire life, spending much of her time writing from her home in Wales. She published her book 'Thinking Again' just a year before she died on 19th November 2020.

Jan Morris

Jan Morris was born in Somerset in 1926. However, because she was trans, she was raised as if she was a boy and did not change her name until the 1960s. Jan's first job was at 16, as a reporter for Bristol's 'Western Daily Press'. However, Jan's career as a journalist had to be put on hold when she went to fight in World War 2.

By the time Jan was 22, the war had ended, and she had a job working for the 'Arab News Agency' in Cairo. It was there that Jan met her wife Elizabeth. As this was prior to Jan's transition, their marriage was initially seen as a heterosexual marriage. In 1964, Jan came out as trans and began her transition. There were very few openly trans people at the time, so this will have made life especially challenging. Jan wrote about her experience of being trans in her book 'Conundrum', explaining that "I was three or perhaps four years old when I realized that I had been born into the wrong body, and should really be a girl."

A travel writer, one of Jan's most famous books was a 'biography' of Venice, which remains one of the most read books about the historic city. Jan's three volume of history of Britain, 'Pax Britannica', is another particularly well-known title. However, it is important not to overlook Jan's work as a journalist. It was Jan that reported on Edmund Hillary's expedition up Mount Everest in 1953. It was also Jan who, in 1956, was the first to provide proof of the collusion between France and Israel in invading Egyptian territory during the Suez crisis.

Jan remained a writer for her entire life, spending much of her time writing from her home in Wales where she lived with her wife and four children. She published her book 'Thinking Again' just a year before her death on 19th November 2020.

Vita Sackville-West

Vita Sackville-West was born in Kent in 1892. She was from a wealthy family and grew up at Knole House near Sevenoaks. Vita took great pride in the family home, which was famed for its 52 staircases.

Vita had a few girlfriends as a teenager and young woman. In 1912, Vita met Harold Nicholson and they were soon married. They were both bi, which means they were attracted to people of the same gender as them and people of different genders to them. Vita and Harold both had boyfriends and girlfriends throughout the course of their marriage – this is something they had discussed and agreed with each other. Vita wrote about her relationship with Harold in 'Portrait of a marriage' in the 1920s. Vita hoped that her book would help people to understand bi people and polyamorous relationships.

Vita was part of the 'Bloomsbury group', which was a group of writers. Many members of the group were LGBT. Life was challenging for LGBT people in the early twentieth century, because of people's attitudes and because it was illegal for men to be gay or bi. At one point, Vita was in an intense relationship with the writer Virginia Woolf.

Vita loved to travel and made frequent visits to France and Spain. She would also go to visit Harold when he was working in Iran (called Persia at the time). Vita sometimes wore stereotypically 'male' clothing. This was very unusual at the time because people had set ideas about what women should wear. Gardening was a particular passion of Vita's. She completely remade the gardens at Sissinghurst Castle, where she lived with Harold and their children. Vita is known for having tried new and experimental ideas when creating her gardens.

In 1948, Vita was given a 'Companion of Honour' title by the Queen. She spent her later years gardening, as well as writing a gardening column for a newspaper. In 1955, she was awarded the gold Veitch medal by the Royal Horticultural Society. In 1962, Vita died.

Vita Sackville-West was born in Kent on 9th March 1892. She was from a wealthy family and grew up at Knole House near Sevenoaks. Vita took great pride in the family home, which was famed for its 52 staircases. At the time, women were unable to inherit land and property, so Vita was upset about the injustice.

Vita had a few girlfriends as a teenager and young woman, and she kept in touch with at least two of them when she was an adult. In 1912, Vita met Harold Nicholson and they were soon married. They were both bi, which means they were attracted to people of the same gender as them and people of different genders to them.

Vita and Harold both had boyfriends and girlfriends throughout the course of their marriage – this is something they had discussed and agreed with each other. Vita wrote about her relationship with Harold in 'Portrait of a marriage' in the 1920s, but this wasn't published until after she died. Life was challenging for LGBT people in the early twentieth century, because of people's attitudes as well as laws making it illegal for men to be gay or bi. At one point, Vita was in an intense relationship with the writer Virginia Woolf.

Vita loved to travel and made frequent visits to France and Spain. She would also go to visit Harold when he was working in Iran (called Persia at the time). Vita sometimes wore stereotypically 'male' clothing, which was almost unheard of at the time due to people's expectations of what women should wear. Gardening was a particular passion of Vita's. She completely remade the gardens at Sissinghurst Castle, which she and Harold had bought in 1930. Vita is known for having tried new and experimental ideas in relation to gardening. Harold and Vita lived at Sissinghurst with their two children, Nigel and Benedict.

In 1948, Vita was given a 'Companion of Honour' title by the Queen, for her services to literature. She spent her later years continuing to develop her garden and writing a weekly gardening column for The Observer. In 1955, she was awarded the gold Veitch medal by the Royal Horticultural Society. In 1962, Vita died.

Vita took great pride in the family home, which was famed for its 52 staircases. At the time, women were unable to inherit land and property, and this was a great source of distress to Vita.

Vita had a couple of different girlfriends as a teenager and young woman, and she kept in touch with both Rosalind and Violet into her adult life. In 1912, Vita met Harold Nicholson and they were soon married. They were both bi, which means they were attracted to people of the same gender as them and people of different genders to them. Vita and Harold both had boyfriends and girlfriends throughout the course of their marriage – this is something they had discussed and agreed with each other. Vita wrote about her relationship with Harold in 'Portrait of a marriage' in the 1920s, but this wasn't published until 1973. One of the things that Vita had hoped to achieve by writing the book was to help people to understand bi people and polyamorous relationships.

A writer with over 35 titles to her name, Vita was part of the 'Bloomsbury group'. This was a group of writers and creatives, many of whom were LGBT. Life was particularly challenging for LGBT people in the early twentieth century, because of societal attitudes as well as laws making it illegal for men to have sex with each other. At one point, Vita was in an intense relationship with the writer Virginia Woolf and it is thought that 'Orlando' was written about Vita.

Vita loved to travel and made frequent visits to France and Spain as well as to visit Harold when he was working in Iran (called Persia at the time). She sometimes wore stereotypically 'male' clothing, which was almost unheard of at the time due to societal attitudes towards rigid gender stereotypes and dress codes. Gardening was a particular passion of Vita's and she undertook a total renovation of the gardens at Sissinghurst Castle, which she bought with Harold in 1930. Vita is known for having tried new and experimental ideas in relation to horticulture. Harold and Vita lived at Sissinghurst with their two children, Nigel and Benedict.
